Jack Frost.

"O, bo! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost, As he sped on his wint'ry way; And he laughed, delighted, As he nipped and blighted The things men deemed most gay. He made the old oak, and the poplar tall, Bend low at his stormy blast, And the last yellow leaves to quiver and fall Before his might as he passed "O, ho! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost,

As he looked at the farmer's firesido, And saw the huge log On the bright iron dug, And a flagon and tankard beside; And heard the gay jest, and the loud merry laugh, As they thrill'd forth their Christmas rhymes. How happy they grew as the liquor they'd quaff-Juck gave a huzza for old times!

"O, ho! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost, As a nobleman's house he passed through, And saw turkey and chine, And brandy and wine: "These, indeed, are rare times for you!" And the rich man dozed in his easy arm-chair, And his fire blazed fiercely and bold; But he never thought one morsel to spare,

For those that were hungry and cold.

"O, ho! O, ho!" sighed old Jack Frost, As he look'd in the poor man's hut; Dark, dirty, and drear, And no fire to cheer, Without window or door that would shut! And a half-clad mother her children cuddled, To give warmth to the nestling brood; And the little ones cried, as together they huddled,

"O, ho! O, ho!" sighed old Jack Frost, At a sight he loved not to see, For paupers he saw, Condemned by the law, To feast upon skilligalee. And he heard the poor wretches refused even that, By the flint-hearted overseer.

"Oh, mother pray give us some food!"

He believed not their tale, as cozy he sat, Their heart-rending cases to hear. "O, ho! O, ho!" doled forth Jack Frost, As he went far and wide through all parts; "I came here to see,

Mirth, comfort, and glee, Not to deaden and freeze up men's hearts. I'll leave the world to the bright sun's beam, Whose brilliance I laugh'd at before; And may the gay warmth of its genial gleam, Cause the rich to remember the poor.

"I recommend to my sons, from my own experience in life, to prefer the happiness of independence and a private station, to the trouble and vexations of public business; but if either their own inclinations, or the necessity of the time, should engage them in public affairs, I charge them on a father's blessing, never to let the motives of private interest or ambition induce them to betray, nor the terrors of poverty and disgrace, or of death, deter them from asserting the liberty of their country, and endeavoring to transmit to their posterity, those sacred rights to which themselves were born."

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE SANTA ANNA. - A letter has been received in Mexico from Havana which mentions that a young Spaniard named Gomez had been arrested by the police, who had just arrived there from Mexico, commissioned by one whose name is purposely omitted, with the intention of assassinating Gen.
